My whole heart rises up to bless Your name in pride and thankfulness!

Take back the hope you gave, lelaim
Only a memory of the same,

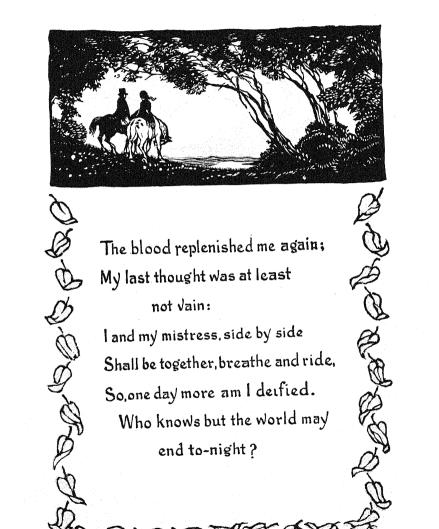

-And this beside, if you will not blame,
Your leave for one more last ride
with me.

"And this beside, if you will not blame,
Your leave for one more last ride with me."

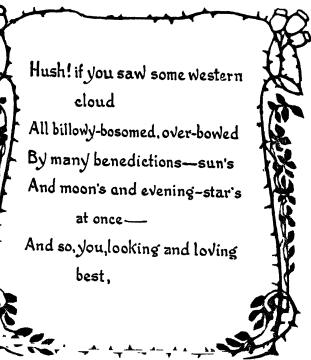

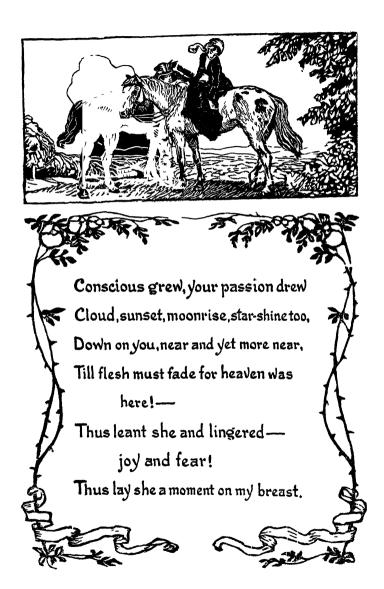

My mistress bent that brow of hers:
Those deep dark eyes where pride
demurs
When pity would be softening through
Fixed me a breathing-while or two
With life or death in the balance:
right!

Had I said that, had I done this,
So might I gain, so might I miss.
Might she have loved me? just as well
She might have hated, who can tell!
Where had I been now if the worst befell?
And here we are riding, she and I.

Fail I alone in words and deeds?

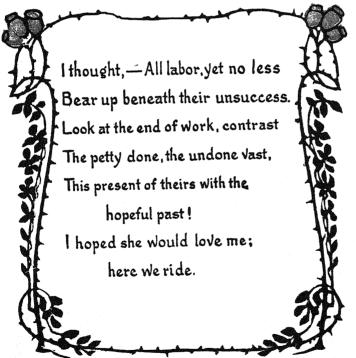

Why, all men strive and who succeeds?

We rode; it seemed my spirit flew.

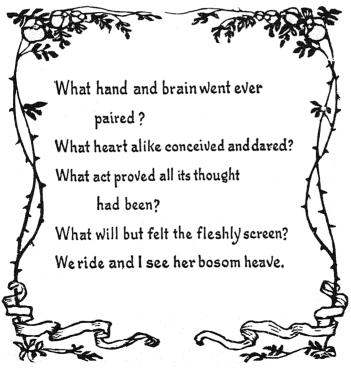

Saw other regions, cities new,

As the world rushed by on either side.

There's many a crown for who can reach.

Ten lines. a statesman's life in each!

The flag stuck on a heap of bones.

A soldier's doing! What atones?

They scratch his name on the Abbey-stones.

My riding is better, by their leave.

"They scratch his name on the Abbey stones, My riding is better, by their leave."

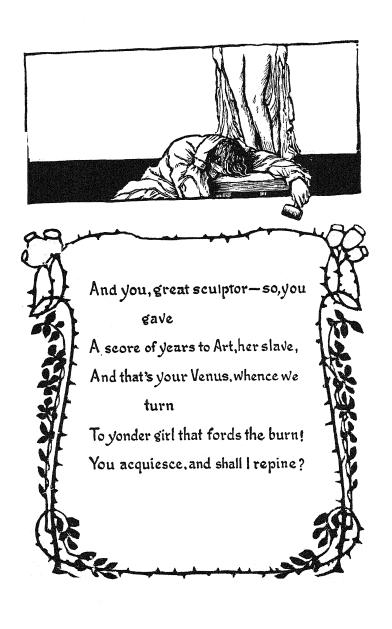

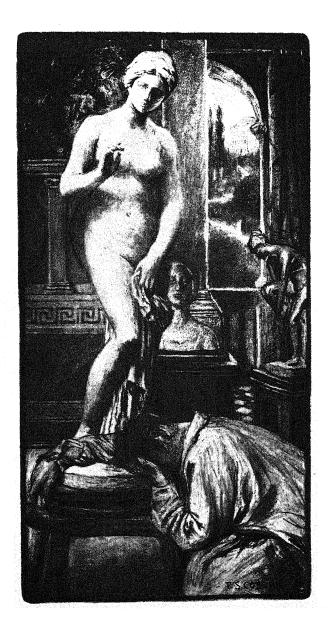

What does it all mean, poet? Well
Your brains beat into rhythm, you tell
What we felt only; you expressed
You hold things beautiful the best.
And pace them in rhyme so, side by side.

'T is something, nay 't is much: but then,
Have you yourself what's best for men?
Are you—poor, sick, old ere your time
—Nearer one whit your own sublime
Than we who never have turned a rhyme?
Sing, riding's a joy! For me, I ride.

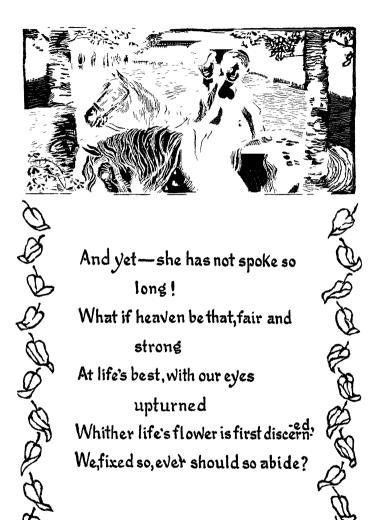

What, man of music, you grown gray With notes and nothing else to say, Is this your sole praise from a friend, "Greatly his opera's strains inlend, But in music we know how fashions end!" I gave my youth; but we ride, infine.

Who knows what's fit for us? Had fate Proposed bliss here should sublimate My being-had I signed the bond-Still one must lead some life beyond, Have a bliss to die with, dim-descried.

"What if we still ride on, we two * * * * * / Ride, ride together, forever ride?"
